Grievance Redressal Policy External

Objective

The Consumers and other external stakeholders' Grievance Redressal Mechanism is designed to offer customer support to consumers and other external stakeholders while also adhering to any rules or guidelines set forth by the government. The mechanism's aim is to ensure that:

- All consumers and other external stakeholders receive consistent, impartial treatment.
- All consumer's and other external stakeholders' complaints are treated respectfully and expeditiously resolved.

Acknowledgement and tracking of Complaints

- All complaints received by the Grievance Officer must be acknowledged and tracked for end-to-end resolution.
- The management or the Grievance Redressal Committee receives the Grievance MIS on a monthly basis.

Grievance Committee

The company shall appoint a grievance committee of three members.

Gender representation and a cross-section of competent employees must be considered when choosing committee members. The Committee will appoint members once in three (3) years or as and when there is a vacancy.

Time Frame:

The following is the turnaround time for responding to a complaint:

- i. Within seven (7) working days, the grievance officer will acknowledge receiving any complaint from the consumer and/or other external stakeholders.
- ii. Common scenarios (apart from the one listed below): 5-7 business days
- iii. The quality or damage-related cases: 15 working days
- iv. Cases involving third parties (15 working days) (courier partner, banks, or financial institutions)
- v. We will follow the deadlines set forth by each regulator for all complaints we receive from them. In the event that additional time is required, the company will notify the regulator of the need for more time and the anticipated timelines for the problem's resolution.

If the consumer's and other external stakeholders' issue is not handled within the allotted time period or if they are not pleased with the resolution offered through the aforementioned channels, they may contact the following escalation channel with a copy of their previous correspondence:
